LADY LAKE

ON THE PLAIN

27 Photographic Works

ARTIST STATEMENT

Lady Lake on the Plain began with a drive through Central Florida and a collection of things that caught my eye: old farm machinery, abandoned cars and trucks, racing cars, livestock, a sprawling oak, and a weathered sign pointing toward Uncle Donald’s Farm.

I photograph these subjects where I find them. Then I remove the surrounding distractions and place them in a recurring landscape of dry brown grass beneath a neutral gray sky. I call this landscape the Plain. It is a place without roads, buildings, fences, or an obvious moment in time.

On the Plain, an ordinary object can become a monument. A tractor is no longer just a tractor; a rusted pickup seems to carry its history with it. The unfamiliar and the familiar stand side by side. Some images are quiet, some humorous, and others a little strange.

These twenty-seven works are a portrait of Lady Lake through what remains, what is still used, and what is simply there waiting to be noticed.

ARTIST BIOGRAPHY

Michael Domino is a New York– and Florida-based photographer, visual storyteller, writer, and independent filmmaker. His work explores historic places, working landscapes, machines, animals, and the overlooked artifacts of American life.

His signature photographic approach begins with original photographs taken in the field. By isolating his subjects and placing them against a spare landscape of brown grass and gray sky, he creates images that move between documentary observation and quiet surrealism.

Domino has developed photographic collections across Long Island, New York City, New Jersey, and Central Florida. His projects include studies of maritime heritage, old vehicles, rural structures, and industrial remnants.
